FINDING ACCURATE INTERNET INFORMATION

Fuel Your Family

Who Wrote it?

Consider the individual's credentials. Does the author have the experience or education to be an expert on this topic?
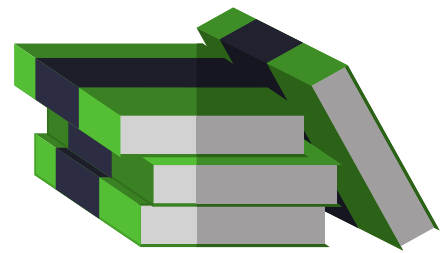

What's the website's goal?

A for-profit website might be more likely to share biased information. Consider why a website might want to share certain information with their audience.

What's their source?

Beware of internet posts that don't cite their source!

Reliable internet sources will ALWAYS share where they got their information.

What's the web address?

Look for websites that end in .GOV & .EDU

Avoid sites ending in .COM .NET or .ORG

Visit https://www.douglas.k-state.edu/ for accurate internet information